THIS DOCUMENT CONTAINS INFORMATION AFFECTING THE NATIONAL DEFENSE OF THE UNITED STATES. WITHIN THE MEANING OF TITLE 18, SECTION 793 AND 794, OF THE U.S. CODE, AS AMENDED. ITS TRANSMISSION OR DISCLOSURE OF ITS CONTENTS TO AN UNAUTHORIZED PERSON IS PROHIBITED BY LAW. THE PENALTIES FOR THIS VIOLATION ARE PRESCRIBED BY LAW.

THIS IS UNEVALUATED INFORMATION

1. The pharmacy department was a part of the chemistry department. The leading pharmacy professors, all of whom remained in Latvia, were: Dr Svirlovskis, who is probably deceased, Dr Maizitis, about 60, and Viktors Skilters, about 55, who is married and has three grown children.

2. The chemistry and pharmacy departments had a director or dean and in 1944 this position was held by a Professor Augusts Keshane, who is about 65 and remained in Latvia. He was professor of inorganic chemistry and the pharmacy students also had to take his course in chemistry. The professor of organic chemistry, who also taught chemists and pharmacists, was Dr Gustavs Vanage. He moved out to Germany in 1944, but went only to Danzig. There the advancing Soviet Army got him and he later returned to Riga where he apparently got back his chair of organic chemistry and afterwards published several papers. He is about 60 and has a son. Physical chemistry was taught by Janis Krustinsons, about 55, who remained in Latvia and is not married. In 1944 the head of chemical technology was Martins Primanis who was also the president (rektor) of the university. He died after WW II in Germany.

3. The chemistry, part of the pharmacy, physics, geography, and some other branches were not located in the main (old) university building (shown in the photos), but in the laboratory building which is located in the Kronvalda Boulevard 4, near the city canal, the state theatre building, and the Riga garrison territory (see sketch). This is a rather large (about four story) building among trees. In the main building were located the central offices of the university as well as the departments of languages, psychology and philosophy, economics and law, engineering, and architecture. Some parts of the pharmacy, the treasurer's office and some other departments were also located in a building on Bazniskas Street. The department of medicine was in another building located on Kronvalda Boulevard as indicated on the sketch.

4. Only few of the leading professors in medicine remained in Latvia. Among them was Dr Stradinah, a leading surgeon. He was working mostly in the university clinics and hospital which was located in one of the western suburbs of Riga near the so-called Agenskalns and the railway station Sasulauks which is on the opposite side of the Daugava River from all the other university buildings. The department of biology was located in another building on Alberta Street which is not far from the building of medicine and the laboratory building already mentioned.
